W. C. T. U. DEPARTMENT.

The Loyal Temperance Union of South Greensboro is in a flourishing condition. It meets every two weeks at 4 p. m. on Friday. There are about 40 members and the meetings are well attended. The children are given temperance lessons, both from a moral and a scientific standpoint, also scripture lessons. Special stress is placed upon the dread cigarette habit and profanity. The children are well trained and seem much interested in the work.

The meetings are held at Grace M. P. church and the dues are 10 cents per year. All children desiring to join are requested to be present at the next meeting, Friday afternoon, June 14th, at 4 o'clock.

PROHIBITED HIS OWN BEER.

Recently Guinness, the great "beer baron," of Dublin, erected some model tenements for the use of working people, prohibited all intoxicating liquors, even his own beer is not allowed to be sold. Lemonade and mineral waters can be had, but intoxicants in every form are shut out. Plenty of baths but no bars. Very significant.

GEN. JOSEPH WHEELER ON THE CANTEN.

At the annual banquet of the Y. M. C. A. of Summit, N. J., of Feb. 22d, Gen. Wheeler, who was the honored guest, in his speech referred to the army canteen in the following words:

"A great deal has been said about the canteen in the army which has now been abolished by Congress. For many years the argument advanced in its favor was that it was necessary because of the character of the men who enlisted in the army; that these men had been accustomed to associate in bar rooms where beer and liquor were sold and that it would be better to sell them beer in the army rather than have them go outside and become intoxicated. That may have been true in years gone by.

It is not true today and I do not believe that I am in error in claiming that one-half the enlistments in the army in the war with Spain were of the very best character of men from the farm and factory, with a large sprinkling of college graduates and business men.

SHARKS GOT FISHERMEN.

Arm of a Negro in the Belly of a Fish Near Where Fifteen Men Went Down.

Charleston, S. C., June 5.—In the belly of a ten foot shark captured last night by the crew of the lightship off Charleston bar there was found today the left arm of a negro. Since the drowning of fifteen fishermen near the lightship on Friday last a school of sharks has been skirting the water and several fishing boats have gone out for the purpose of making captures. Late last night a big shark which swam near the lightship nibbled at a hook attached to a rope and by a good strong pull he was landed. There was a desperate struggle lasting for nearly ten minutes, but the shark was finally overpowered and dragged on deck.

Other sharks ran near the ship, although they kept away from the hooks. When the shark had been killed it was decided to cut open the belly to see if he had been feasting on the fishermen. The arm of a negro was found, the bone had been snapped off above the elbow. There was nothing by which it could be identified.

No trace of the fifteen lost fishermen can be found, and it is thought that the sharks devoured the bodies. Old salts here think that the sharks were of the man-eating kind, and it is said that the condition of the arm shows that it was torn off in a struggle.

Sharks are numerous off the coast, but they are not known to have eaten people alive. The discovery of the arm has excited the fishermen to such an extent that they are afraid to venture far from land.

There are three things that can always get the best of a woman—politics, pickles, and punctuation.

AN ABLE ADDRESS ON THE SOUTH

DELIVERED BY DR. PARKHURST

TELLS HIS CONGREGATION ABOUT HIS SOUTHERN TRIP.

The Meeting at Winston-Salem Is Spoken Of—One of the Results of the Meeting is that the Northerner Learned to Look Upon Matters More in the Way a North Carolinian or a Georgian Does—The Inspiring Motives Patriotic and Not Partisan.

The following address was delivered by Rev. Charles H. Parkhurst, D. D., a member of the "Ogden Party," before his Madison Square congregation, New York City, the Sabbath after his return from the South:

"It requires but observation to discover that God, in His construction of things, has taken care to make them in such a way that they shall not be able to stand quite alone, but shall be obliged to some extent to support themselves upon each other. We state this by saying that the best things are not complete in themselves and become complete only through their membership in each other. In the human body, for example, the finger is not a finger really without the hand that it is attached to; so of the hand, the arm, and all the rest, they become complete only through combination with associate members.

"So close is this membership in any thoroughly organized body that when anything happens to one part it, to some degree, happens to all the rest. One member cannot sicken without more or less of malady being inflicted upon other members; one member cannot be exuberantly well without reinforcing the health or at least relieving the invalidism of every other member.

"This is a shrewd way God has of promoting among individuals a mutual interest in each other. He has constructed us in such a way that we have to give some attention to others' interests in order to the best promotion of our own interests. When history started out each man thought of himself as a thing by itself. That was as far as sociology had gone in Cain's day. As he looked upon it, Cain was Cain, and Abel was Abel, and that was all there was to it. He thought naturally enough that he was as complete a thing without Abel as with him, and so he knocked him out. This knocking down was a blunder, but a valuable blunder, for it gave God the opportunity to put in some valuable sociological work and to teach that each is a member of all and all a part of each.

"Now the seriousness of this membership relation lies in this, that we are not shut up to our own individual interests, deficiencies and responsibilities, but are participant in all the interests, defects, and responsibilities pertaining to the particular organization, moral, social or civic, in which our membership inheres. Thus, for example, our own State of North Carolina, Georgia or New York may not be polygamous, but Utah is polygamous, as it exists in Utah, does not stop with Utah, but is a pervasive infection, corrupting every state in the Union, and putting a taint upon domestic life in the entire country. I do not mean that as an actual practice it extends to every State, but that the presence anywhere in our country of the unholy abominations vitiates the sentiments, lowers the moral tone and tends to blight the purity of domestic life throughout the nation. All that is intended by the foregoing example is simply to illustrate the principle, sufficiently evident and abundantly recognized, that wherever elements of whatever sort are combined together to form an organized whole, the whole is saddled with the responsibility of each part, and each part saddled with the responsibility of every other part, and all wrought together into a community of interests, concern and obligation.

"Now, I want to go on from that point and say that it was at the impulse of just such considerations that a company of Northern people have recently made a somewhat extended tour in the South. The members of that party did not go because of their interest in the South as such—in the South as a distinct section of territory—but because consciousness of the unity which makes North and South members of each other, and which therefore converts any problem pertaining to either of the two into a problem belonging to both of the two.

"And that feature of the situation was distinctly appreciated not only by the Northern visitors but by their Southern entertainers. The conferences held at Winston-Salem, in North Carolina, were conducted in utmost frankness by the representatives of both sections, and yet from first to last there was not an unkindly word spoken; so far as could be detected there was no offence taken either at the outspoken criticisms passed by the North upon the South nor by those passed by the South upon the North. Hardly could severer language have been used than was employed by one Southern gentleman in characterizing the degrading carpet-bagging policy which the North availed of after the war, but the language used was as meekly submitted to as it was richly deserved, and had the effect to draw them only the more closely together.

"And that was rather the more paramount feature of the occasion. Its intentions were national not sectional. The inspiring motives were patriotic not partisan. The moving impulses were religious not political. The whole enterprise was Christianity working along lines of secular policy. Whether the discussions concerned themselves with racial problems or with matters of education, education industrial or education academic—the whole tenor of thought and speech was distinctly Christian, as was consistent with the fact that the auditorium where the conference convened was that of an old Moravian church.

"A large variety of Southern States was represented as well as of Northern, but, speaking for myself, I can say that I came upon the track of not a single individual who seemed to have any other feeling than that we who came from the Northern States were not meddling with what was not at all our business, but that the questions involved were so broad in their application and so national in their pressure as to demand the consideration and co-operation of all who were nationally concerned. A contradictory utterance from the South has, it is true, found gubernatorial expression since the conference concluded, but of a tone and temper so out of consonance with the animus of the conference that its publication would have been impossible had the Governor of Georgia, as did the Governor of North Carolina, come in direct touch with the personnel of the conference or for five minutes respired the atmosphere which the conference exhaled.

One of their results yielded by this tour of Southern visitation is that we learn to look upon matters more in the way in which the Southern mind regards them. Southern problems such as those of race and illiteracy, came to take upon them more the aspect with which they present themselves to the eye of a Carolinian or a Georgian. We never can aid a man except in the degree in which we are able to put ourselves in the position of the man to be aided as well as stand in the position of the one who is to render the aid. We cannot in the present exigency help a Georgian except in the degree in which we are able to put ourselves under the limitations of a Georgian, or, I should rather say, in the environment of a Georgian.

"All just discussion of those questions of race and of education now agitating the South must proceed in the light of the fact that the Southerner does not like the Negro and is fearful of what may be the eventual consequence of having so large a negro element in the population. He does not like the negro any better than the average Northerner does, the two, the white man of the North and the white man of the South—carry themselves toward the negro with just about the same amount of Christian consideration; only of the two the Southern white man has perhaps this advantage.

In the Mayor's Court.

Several cases came before the mayor at the sitting of his court yesterday, and a few dollars were added to the city's treasury. Kile Jones, colored, was fined $7 for being drunk and disorderly; a white-man named McMasters was fined a similar amount for disorderly conduct; Dick Causey, white, was fined $5 and costs for being drunk and down. Upon promise to do better he was let off with the costs, and the fine left standing over his head to insure his future good behavior. Will Cohen, a street carriage driver, paid $3 for leaving his team standing in the street.

THE SPARTAN JAPS.

Instances of Their Wonderful Endurance and Feats of Strength.

I have said that the Japanese are a Spartan race, writes Anna N. Benjamin, in Ainslee's. Many things besides their resistance to cold prove it. The most of them live in simplicity. They can go a long time without food. The coolies perform marvelous feats of strength and endurance; they draw a "jinrikisha" all day or carry travelers over the steepest mountains. Every summer a colony of foreigners go to Mount Hei-eizan, near Kioto. Their camp is several miles up the steep mountain side, but early each morning the Japanese bring up the mail, fresh vegetables and milk, and women often carry trunks to the summit on their heads. In the upper classes the old "sumarai" ideals inculcated endurance, courage and simplicity. A writer in a recent magazine comments upon the seven years' training of the Japanese officer. This is the preparation of a second lieutenant; but it is merely a continuation under modern methods, of the old "sumarai" requirements. The fact that the Japanese is one of the best soldiers in the world, and one of the toughest, is not such a great cause for wonder, because it is not the outcome of western military training—of modernization—for the seeds of the western methods were sown on a long-cultivated Spartan soil. The learning of new military tactics and the adoption of up-to-date weapons may be likened to placing new machinery in an old mill which depends for power on a great water fall. The new machinery provides no power in itself.

TO CAN TREE ANTS.

Insects Found in the Woods of the Northwest May Be Put Up as a Condiment.

"Some enterprising dealer in canned goods could make a small fortune," said a visiting lumberman, reports the New Orleans Times-Democrat, "by going into the northwest and putting up tree ants as a condiment. No, I'm not joking," he continued, "and what's more, the product would need no introduction to the people of that region. All through the lumber districts of Minnesota and Wisconsin ants are regarded as a great delicacy, and the only trouble is that they can't get enough of them. I don't know why it is, but men who do hard manual labor in cold climates acquire a strong craving for something sour, and the big, brawny choppers and teamsters found out long ago that ants were a palatable substitute for pickles. They use only a peculiar variety, large and red in color and found in immense quantities under the bark of dead trees. It is not very hard to collect a quart pail full, and after killing them by scalding they are spread on a board and dried in the sun. When ready to eat they look like coarse, brown powder and have a very agreeable, aromatic smell.

"Of course, it is impossible to describe exactly how they taste, but the general flavor would remind you of some fine fruit vinegar, and if you have any squeamishness over the nature of the dish it doesn't take you long to forget it. I can't see, however, why there should be any objection to dried ants as a table delicacy. They are perfectly clean and certainly as attractive as snails or shrimps."

OLD BEN, AMBULANCE HORSE.

Heard the Gong of an Automobile Ring and Went Over His Old Route.

Old Ben, an ambulance horse, who was dispensed with by the police department after supposedly outliving his usefulness, made his second brilliant performance when he ran away in Edgemont, says the Canton (O.) News-Democrat.

Ben has been doing duty as an ordinary delivery wagon "hoss" recently, and while standing at the corner of Cincinnati and Washington streets heard the gong of an approaching automobile. Supposing that it was the ambulance and that his services were needed, Ben flew off at a terrible speed, never stopping until he reached the St. Elizabeth hospital at Hopeland street, where he drew up in front of the institution as of old, but with nothing but shafts dangling behind. En route Ben had brought thousands of people to the curbstones, and he left destruction in his wake. Faithful Old Ben, conscientious and energetic despite his age, escaped unscathed and was taken in charge at the hospital by gentle hands.

Several months ago Ben happened in front of the Main street engine house when an alarm was sounded. The noise of the gongs awakened the old-time feeling in the animal, and he ran several miles, beyond control of the driver, who finally guided him into a fence. His last remarkable run covered a mile, and Old Ben knew every foot of the route.

CATARRH
A Constitutional Affection.

Sprays, washes, powders, salves, medicated tobacco and cigarettes, however long and persistently used, do not cure Catarrh. They relieve temporarily the inflammation in the throat and nose, and enable you to breathe more easily and freely, but the continual rush of impure blood to these parts keeps up the irritation and ultimately produces ulceration of the glands, when the breath becomes exceedingly offensive and the soft bones of the nose are frequently destroyed. The catarrhal inflammation extends over the entire surface of the mucous membrane, or inner skin; the stomach, kidneys and lungs are often involved; the whole system soon becomes affected by the rapid absorption of poisonous matter into the blood, and the disease that you had hoped to cure with simple local remedies, assumes a dangerous form.

I had Catarrh about 15 years, and tried during the time everything I could hear of, but nothing did me any good. At last I came to the conclusion that Catarrh must be a blood disease, and decided to give S. S. S. a trial. I could see a little improvement from the first bottle, and continued it three or four months, or until I was cured. Have not taken anything for six years, and am just as well as I ever was.—M. MATSON, Leper, Mich.

Catarrh is a constitutional disease—a blood disease which is frequently inherited, and only a blood medicine, such as S. S. S., can remove the hereditary taint, destroy the poisons that have been accumulating in the system for years perhaps, and restore the blood to a healthy and pure condition. The inflamed membranes and diseased glands are healed by the rich, pure blood which is carried to them, and the offensive discharges from the nose, and the terrible headache and neuralgic pains cease. Chronic cases of the most desperate character and apparently hopeless, have been cured completely and permanently by the use of S. S. S.

Write our physicians fully about your case and they will cheerfully assist you by their advice. We charge nothing whatever for this service. Book free on application.

ABLE ADDRESS ON THE SOUTH

South was that made by President Dancy of the University of Tennessee. Some of the figures which he gave were almost terrifying in the exposition of poverty, ignorance and general disability and helplessness: but I remember the quick reaction with which the whole audience was thrilled when he commenced the closing passage of his masterly address by the words—"And yet the sky is full of the token of a coming day."

"Now that is the situation. Like every picture it is a unique commingling of light and shade. The South does not altogether love us but no one there hates us nearly as much as it would be perfectly natural for them to hate us. They are all glad that slavery is done, they are all glad that they are in the Union. They all glory in the flag, even while in tender bereavement they lay flowers upon the graves of the Confederate dead. We belong to them and they belong to us, and every deed of kindness wisely rendered, every word of sympathetic interest prudently spoken, every new commercial relation established between them and us, every interchange of hospitalities discreetly arranged, will be so much contribution to that perfect readjustment of relations, that realization of perfect membership in each other, whereby each shall make the other wiser, richer, better, to the strengthening of the country at large, the enrichment of our common history and to the praise of Him upon whom depends our origin, preservation and destiny."

Mr. J. E. Lilly, a prominent citizen of Humboldt, Mo., lately had a wonderful deliverance from a frightful death. In telling of it he says: "I was taken with typhoid fever, that ran into pneumonia. WINE OF CARDUI

THE LINK THAT BINDS.

JACKSON, TENN., Nov. 23.
I was subject to miscarriage for three years, and suffered constantly with backache. I wrote to you for advice, and after using three bottles of Wine of Cardui, according to your directions, I am strong and well, and the mother of a fine girl baby.

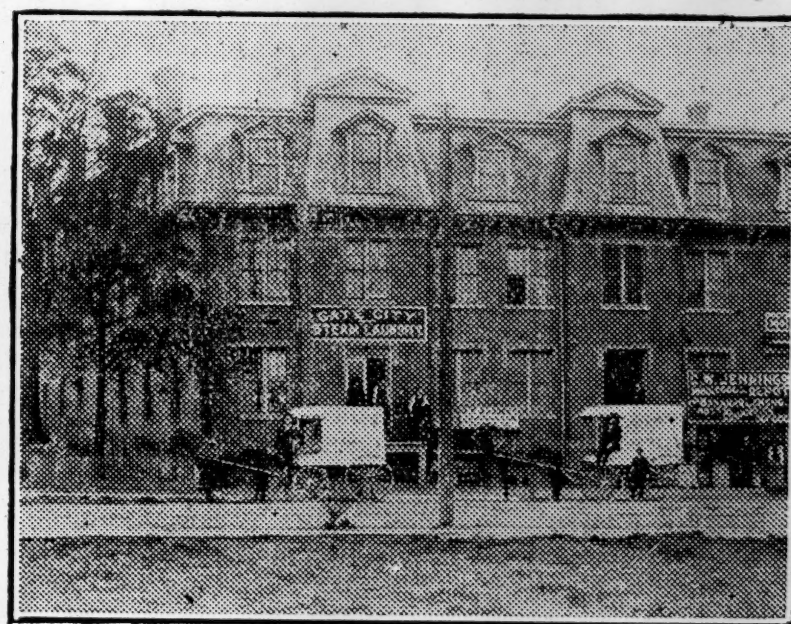

Mrs. E. N. JOWERS.

WINE OF CARDUI

There is no use talking—a baby in the house is the link that binds husband and wife together. Nothing is sadder than fruitless wedlock. The prattling and cooing of the little ones offset a thousand times the occasional worries and trials of life. When a wife is barren, there is a derangement somewhere in the genital organs, caused by one or more of those common disorders known as "female troubles". Wine of Cardui is the remedy. It puts the organs of generation in a strong and healthy condition, fitting the wife for the sacred duty of reproducing her kind. During the period of gestation the entire system of the expectant mother is built up to withstand the ordeal of labor, and when the little one makes its advent it is lusty and strong, well-fitted to grow to maturity in perfect health. The mother, too, passes through the trial with little pain and no dread. Wine of Cardui is truly a wonderful medicine for women.

SATURDAY, JUNE 8.

The Washington Post of yesterday contained an account of four mishaps in that city, in which the victims were with one exception negroes. The white man fell from the top of a freight car, and was seriously injured; one of the negroes, a hod carrier, fell from the second story of a dwelling, lit on his head in a pile of lumber, and then walked to a hospital to have his wound treated. The other two negroes were more seriously hurt, but were able to walk home. A negro's head is a hard thing to break.

Our esteemed contemporary, the Charlotte Observer, in speaking of Major Watlington, of High Point, who at present, is in Charlotte says:

"* * * He sells baskets—any kind of baskets, and thus he is a prototype of another kingly house, which a few years ago dealt in the bull rush trade.

We have long felt that no one could speak slightly of our friend, Major Watlington, without displaying a lamentable ignorance, and so it is with our esteemed Charlotte contemporary, who speaks of him as a "prototype" of a kingly house which "a few years ago" dealt in the bull rush trade. The solitary dictionary, or which this office is able to boast states that "prototype" is "the original pattern or model of anything."

REPULSES A MOB.

A Sheriff Saves a Negro From Lynchers.

Carrollton, Ga., June 7.—The nerve of an obscure Georgia sheriff whose name is Jos. Merrill, today upheld the law of the State and saved the life of a negro from a mob. In protecting the negro, who was saved from the gallows only a few hours before by the efforts of his lawyer, one life was lost and two men were wounded. The arrival of the State militia averted threatened trouble tonight and at 9 o'clock a special train bearing the negro whose crime was the murder of a little white boy, whom he found fishing alone, and his guard, was speeding towards Atlanta. The man killed in attacking the jail was George Bennett, of Carrollton, and the wounded men are Thomas Smith, also of Carrollton, and an unknown man, presumably a farmer. Thomas S. Word, father of the murdered boy who was in the front rank of the would-be lynchers, was, strange to say, not hit. After Bennett fell, Mr. Word jumped upon the window and exclaimed dramatically, "Shoot me, Mr. Sheriff, I would as soon die now as any time." Only nine shots were fired and the walls of the jail show the marks of the bullets. None of the sheriff's posse was hit.

Williams, the negro, was tried and found guilty of murdering Otis Word, on January 1st, this year, and sentenced to be hanged today, being refused a new trial by Judge Harris. This morning, his attorney filed a bill of exceptions and carried the case to the Supreme court. A large crowd of people had come to town to witness the hanging and when it was learned that an appeal had been taken to the Supreme court, delaying execution, there was much talk, which crystallized soon after in the formation of a mob.

From the most reliable authority in the islands he has ascertained that the population of Tutuila totals 4,000, and of the Manua group 2,000, including adults and children. In addition to the native population there are on the islands approximately 100 whites.

ADVERTISING COMMENT.

By THE HUSTLER.

The public is invited to try a cup of perfect coffee, the making of which is demonstrated while you wait, by Mrs. DeWitt, at J. W. Scott & Co. Housekeepers should not miss this.

This is the season when you should protect your trees, shrubbery, vines, and vegetables, by spraying. Use a good pump and good Paris Green, which may be bought of the Odell Hardware Co., and satisfactory results will be obtained.

Messrs. Hary-Belk Brothers Company find time to announce a few of their many bargains in this issue of The Telegram. This is a firm that not only advertises in print, but also make it a point that every article going out of their house shall be at such a price, as will be a continual advertisement. We are informed that they spend a considerable amount in advertising in this manner.

Pianos and organs are on the move at A. D. Jones & Co's music store. At the present rate they will not be long in disposing of the car load received on Wednesday. We frequently in passing the depot see two or three ready for shipment.

The Moore Optical Co. are now getting installed in their new quarters over the store of Messrs. J. M. Hendrix & Co., and they will be very nicely fixed. See their ad today.

Dr. Griffith is one of the few dentists who believe in letting the public know of any special advantages he may have to offer, through the newspapers. See change of ad today.

We were mistaken yesterday in saying it was shoes Messrs. J. M. Hendrix & Co., were talking about. It was corsets, but whether shoes, corsets, or anything else in his line, whatever they tell you about them can be put down as solid facts.

Mr. Howard Gardner has just received a fresh supply of Nunnally's famous candles.

The Gate City Steam Laundry ad comes up in good shape today, without anything being left out, at least on our part. However, much has been left out that might be truthfully said as to the merits of Gloss Finish, and the good work done by this enterprising concern.

HOW THE TRIO WERE CAPTURED

SHERIFF JORDAN TELLS OF THE GOLD BRICK TRIAL TODAY.

Deputy Sheriff Weatherly Gives Interesting Testimony—The Spectators Not So Numerous—Attorneys for Defence File Numerous Objections to Judge's Ruling

The net is steadily tightening around the gold brick men, and to an on-looker it appears only to be a question of going through the formality of the trial to convict the prisoners, whose lawyers, however, are making a desperate fight for them. The most sensational part of the State's testimony has been heard, and as a result not so many of the curious were present at the trial today. The day was not without incident, however. There was some sharp sparring among the lawyers and Judge Council took occasion several times to let it be known that he was supreme authority in the court room. He has no patience with needless attempts to interrupt witnesses and the asking of unnecessary questions. The attorneys for the defence have filed numerous objections to the judge's rulings, nearly all of which have been overruled.

The details of the thrilling capture of Howard, Hawley and Daley were told by Sheriff Jordan, who, in co-operation with Revenue Agent Patterson, managed the affair upon information furnished by Garrett. The sheriff told of how he and Mr. Patterson spotted the swindlers and followed Mr. Garrett and Howard to the woods, where Daley, in the disguise of a wild Indian, was temporarily domiciled in a thicket on South Buffalo. After the gold bricks had been exhibited and the make-believe Indian had, in his peculiar jibberish, expressed his willingness to accept the new partner, the officers closed in on the party and put a sudden end to the transaction. Leaving the prisoners in the woods in the custody of deputies, Sheriff Jordan and Mr. Patterson returned to town and arrested Hawley, the alleged assayer. He was left at the Hotel Guilford in charge of Mr. Garland Daniel pending the arrival of the officers with the two other prisoners.

Deputy Sheriff John Weatherly, who acted in conjunction with Sheriff Jordan and Revenue Agent Patterson, was next placed on the stand. He testified that he saw the three prisoners together on the afternoon preceding the arrest; that they passed each other on the street several times, exchanging a few words each time. When Mr. Garrett arrived on the train from the east Friday at noon he was met by Howard, Hawley and Daley, being near by and watching their confederate and the victim who was to be the means of getting them into so much trouble. Hawley and Daley followed Howard and Mr. Garrett to a hotel and remained in the vicinity for some little time, Hawley taking a position inside a doorway on the opposite side of the street from the hotel and Daley stationing himself on a near-by corner. Just before the party started to the woods Hawley went across the street and held a whispered conversation with Howard. Mr. Weatherly testified that when the arrest was made he found a pistol concealed on Howard's person.

Mr. Garland Daniel, the gentleman who guarded Hawley at the hotel, was the next witness examined. He told of how his attention was first attracted to the men and of seeing Hawley and Daley together several times on the morning preceding the arrest. While waiting at the hotel for the return of Howard and Mr. Garrett Hawley appeared very nervous. When arrested several grips were found in his room, one of which contained a complete assayer's outfit. Hawley explained that this grip belonged to a friend in the South and that he did not have the key. When his keys were taken from him, however, one was found that unlocked the grip. Hawley also had a letter purporting to be from an officer of the Philadelphia mint, which informed Hawley of his re-appointment to a good position. The letter went on to say that Secretary Gage had written a very complimentary letter concerning Hawley and that the latter should feel highly complimented to receive such an endorsement from this high source, especially since it was well known that he (Hawley) was a strong Southern Democrat. The letter also contained the information that the Republican boys were disgruntled over the appointment of a Democrat to one of the best positions in the mint. Hawley made a desperate attempt to destroy the letter, but was prevented by Mr. Daniel.

A woman will forgive a man for breaking her heart, but when he once compelled her to change her mind she will hate him forever.

At the first church tomorrow morning our community will have the opportunity of hearing an accomplished representative of the historic Huguenot Church of France, the Rev. Prof. Jean Knatz (D'Ortol), General Secretary of the Huguenot Evangelical Society of the South. His account of the religious condition of modern France, of the relations between Protestantism and Roman Catholicism, and of the popular current setting in away from the latter toward the former, will be something new and highly interesting to the people of our community.

At eighty thirty at night an address will be delivered by Mr. Sayad, a native of Persia, and a relative of Mrs. Yonan. Mr. Sayad has been studying in this country for several years, and will shortly return as a missionary to his native land.

Mr. Brower Retires.

I am very sorry that it has been given out by a disinterested party that I have retired from the firm of Merritt, Brower & Co. It is a fact that I have sold my interest to Mr. J. W. Merritt, but the dissolution was strictly a mutual agreement and the best of feeling prevails. I retired only on personal grounds and not on account of any trouble or dissatisfaction, having arisen between any of the members of the firm. The official announcement would have been made on Thursday last, but for Mr. Merritt having to leave the city on a business trip, and it was thought best not to announce it until his return and the style of the new firm had been decided upon.

THE STRIKERS TALK

Say Eight Men are at Work at Spencer Shop. Five Men are Guarding Them—One Man is Working Here.

The striking machinists of the Southern at this place, were interviewed by a Telegram reporter this morning, and in response to an inquiry as to how the strike was proceeding, they replied that a few men, eight in all, had been secured by the railway company to work at the Spencer shops, and these eight men were being guarded by a force of 15 men. One man has been secured to work in this city, in the place of the four who struck.

No violence, the strikers say, has been committed, or even contemplated; they made their demands in a peaceable manner, and in the same way have conducted themselves since they walked out.

The new men at the Spencer shops are said to be foreigners, and nothing they say can be understood, not even by the men who are guarding them.

The strikers are still confident, and say that the matter will be settled in a short time now. They speak bitterly of the men who come in to fill their places.

TO FENCE THE NORMAL.

Board of Directors So Order—Where the New Building Will be Located.

The Normal Directors in their session yesterday in addition to the report printed in The Telegram, ordered that a fence be built around the portion of the grounds of the institution which lie between Walker avenue and Spring Garden street. This action is necessary for the protection of the students of the institution as well as for the protection of its property.

While no definite site has been decided upon for the observation school building to be erected this summer, it will probably be located upon Walker avenue and on the north side of that street, immediately opposite the main buildings of the Normal. The selection of a site has been left in the hands of Dr. McIver.

vantage, that he does not make quite so flamboyant a pretense of loving the negro as the Northern confere does. He dislikes the negro and owns up to it, the white man in the North dislikes the negro and lies about it. It is more a difference of frankness than of admiration.

"It does not avail very much to say that the negro is a man and ought to be treated as such. The fact in the case is that he has for such a length of time been treated as though he were merely a high order of animal that men have lost the power of conceiving him in any other character. It would not be at all surprising if there were those in this congregation who treat even their white employees to such degree as beasts of burden or beasts of draught as never to realize that they are a part of humanity in the full sense of that term. If our treatment of a man is influenced by our opinion of him it is also true that our opinion of him is influenced by our treatment of him, so that it is due to something beside moral obliquity that the negro is, throughout the South, denied full title to membership in the human family. This is not designed to imply that the negro is not as much a man as anybody else, but what we went South for was not to learn the abstract generalities in the case but the concrete particulars,—not what Southerners ought to think of black people but what they actually do think of them.

"Granted that this view of the negro is a prejudice; a prejudice is a fact just as much as anything else, and to that extent must be respected. It is impossible to drive an idea into a man's head, and still more impossible to drive an idea out after it is in, and mistaken ideas are just as difficult to dislodge as any other ideas, and if the North is going to aid the South in its present difficulties it must be by taking the most delicate care possible to avoid direct collision with Southern prejudice. If there is frost in the ground it cannot be pounded out with a sledge-hammer, but time will bring it out and warm weather.

The closer one comes to the actual situation, the more one must feel that the less the negro talks about his civic rights under the constitution, particularly the right of suffrage, the better it will be for him and the sooner he will attain to all the right that justly belong to him. The indiscriminating act by which negroes had conferred upon them the right to vote was one of those blunders that it is not easy to escape from after once it is committed, but which it would seem we ought to have had Northern statesmanship sufficiently intelligent to prevent.

"And the position just stated is one that is to be taken, not so much in the interests of the Southern whites as in the interests of the Southern blacks. The premature yielding of the prerogative has built up a wall of antagonism to the colored race that only shuts the race out from the enjoyment of the prerogative. The counsel therefore that both the Northern and Southern friends of the negro are giving to him is to keep quiet upon the whole suffrage matter, to keep out of politics, not to talk about the Constitution, not to insist upon his right, but to attend industriously to the work of getting himself well ready—which is not now—for what God, and the country and the future may have in store for him; to learn to work, to learn to love to work, especially to acquire respect for agriculture, to get as much as he can into his now untrained intelligence, and confidently to expect that in due time he will be rated at exactly what he is worth, and that in due time he will be allowed the exercise of all the rights and privileges that he is fit for. To some extent he will have to trust the Lord in all the matters, and have confidence in the outcomes of a progressive Christian civilization.

"There is too often among us a disposition to imagine that we can reason out a solution of all these problems. That is too much like supposing that a flower just emerging from the ground can gather itself together and settle then and there the difficult question pertaining to its own growth and plan and method of its structure. All those questions somehow settle themselves, or rather they get settled as the plant goes on with its growing. And whether in nature or in human history, God always takes care of the problems if we go along each day and take care of the thing that comes to us to do next. What we call 'solving problems' is usually an attempt to avoid the discharge of immediate duty by putting our time and talents into the work of drafting a scheme of duties that somebody else will be expected to attend to by-and-bye.

"In view of all that has been thus far stated it goes almost without the saying that the average white man of the South regards with anxious and with bitter jealousy anything that looks like an attempt on the part of the North to improve the condition of the South, if such improvement contemplates exclusively the improvement of the colored man. It is for that reason that the less we up here talk about racial questions the better. It is the racial question that to the Southern mind is the sensitive nerve of the entire situation. It is hard enough for them now to get along with the negroes and everything that the North does for the negro only makes the situation more strained and the Southern white man more nervous and touchy, unless with every Northern dollar that is laid out for the education of the poor blacks an answering dollar is appropriated for the separate education of the poor whites. If you have read the somewhat virulent strictures which Governor Candler has just perpetrated upon the Ogden party, you have observed that his indictment does not level itself against the proffer of Northern interest or Northern money given in aid of the South, but against the proffer of such aid as will put the uneducated people at increased disadvantage in their competition with the black people. The Governor, has a rather crabbed way of phrasing himself, and doubtless represents a large body of its constituents, but there is in attitude an element that is neither surprising nor void of sound sense, and the unfortunate circumstance in the case is that he could not have seen his way clear to accept the invitation that was tendered him to meet the 'yankees' and come close enough to them to find that what they would like to do is not to help the whites and it not to help the blacks, but to help the South, which is wretchedly ignorant, and wretchedly poor.

"Now a word about Southern poverty. Such poverty is not so observable in the cities and particularly in such a city at Atlanta which, in point of comfort and thrift might easily be mistaken for a Northern town; but as soon as one gets away from the towns and adventures himself into the barren wastes of the unredeemed country about, the wretchedness is pathetic and the poverty colossal. This poverty is partly the result of the war, partly the fruit of the 'peculiar institution' from which all parties alike are glad to have been relieved, and partly the outcome of the shiftlessness (incident perhaps to a more tropical climate) which has been for so many generations the hereditary possession of the Southern people as to have become in them a permanent genius.

"But shiftless as they are, they are dreaming of something better, and whether white or black, there is growing up in them a desire for wholesome practical education, and a desire too that is indefinitely beyond their financial means of satisfying. They want better schools and better teachers but there is no money to pay for them. Why then does not the federal government revive the Blair Bill and come to the relief of its own children, the suffering members of our own national household? What are children for if not to be taken care of? What is the use of having a general government if it does not concentrate its prime and jealous regard upon the necessities of its own people? What rational expectation have we of ever girdling the earth with a zone of civilizing and redeeming influences except by being ourselves first of all interiorly consolidated upon a groundwork of pervasive intelligence and pervasive integrity? What should we think of any father who should borrow children from the poorhouse and make room and victuals for them by driving his own offspring out-of-doors naked and unfed?

Nevertheless the South, being deeply interred as it has been, is slowly but unmistakably emerging from its grave. The time is coming, although still perhaps in the remote future, when the Southland will be the very garden of our country. Embarrassed, straitened, hopeless as may seem the Southern condition of poverty, aimlessness and ignorance, there are the incipient symptoms of progress. Things are moving, and that they are moving is a far more important fact than the rate at which they are moving. Many of the statements made to us by the educational experts of the South were of a character most lugubrious and depressing, and yet there was not an address of that kind made that did not close with at least one note of cheer. One of the most thorough and searching exhibits of the educational situation in the

"At one time I suffered from a severe sprain of the ankle," says George E. Cary, editor of the Guide, Washington Va. "After using several well recommended medicines with out success, I tried Chamberlain's Pain Balm, and am pleased to say that relief came as soon as I began its use and a complete cure speedily followed." Sold by C. E. Holton, druggist.

Mr. W. S. Whedon, cashier of the First National Bank of Winterest, Iowa, in recent letter gives some experiences with a carpenter in his employ, that will be of value to other mechanics. He says: "I had a carpenter working for me who was obliged to stop work for several days on account of being troubled with diarrhoea. I mentioned to him that I had been similarly troubled and that Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy had cured me. He bought a bottle of it from the druggist here and informed me that one dose cured him, and he is again at his work." For sale by C. E. Holton, druggist.

A GOOD COUGH MEDICINE. It speaks well for Chamberlain's Cough Remedy when druggists use it in their own families in preference to any other. "I have sold Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for the past five years with complete satisfaction to myself and customers," says druggist J. Goldsmith, Van Etten, N. Y. "I have always used it in my own family both for ordinary coughs and colds and for the cough following la grippe, and find it very efficacious." For sale by C. E. Holton, druggist.

MURRAY BROS.

INSURANCE.

A Wife Says:

"We have four children. With the first three I suffered almost unbearable pains from 12 to 14 hours, and had to be placed under the influence of chloroform. I used three bottles of Mother's Friend before our last child came, which is a strong, fat and healthy boy, doing my housework up to within two hours of birth, and suffered but a few hard pains. This liniment is the grandest remedy ever made."

Mother's Friend

will do for every woman what it did for the Minnesota mother who writes the above letter. Not to use it during pregnancy is a mistake to be paid for in pain and suffering. Mother's Friend equips the patient with a strong body and clear intellect, which in turn are imparted to the child. It relaxes the muscles and allows them to expand. It relieves morning sickness and nervousness. It puts all the organs concerned in perfect condition for the final hour, so that the actual labor is short and practically painless. Danger of rising or hard breasts is altogether avoided, and recovery is merely a matter of a few days.

Druggists sell Mother's Friend for $1 a bottle. The Bradfield Regulator Co., Atlanta, Ga. Send for our free illustrated book.
